FLIRTING

THIS business of Britain's entry or non-entry into the Common Market has gone on long enough. It is a flirtation which has proceeded for too long, and one that has caused far too much uneasiness in the Commonwealth.

Time and again, the Commonwealth is assured that there is no cause for alarm, but there is and there will remain considerable cause for alarm until Britain makes up her mind, or the other members of the Commonwealth make up her mind for her.

Examining the present state of affairs, we find considerable division in the House of Commons. We find the House divided on an issue as it never was before, for it is not a division of the parties, but of individual opinions.

We find Tory and Socialist Members joined in open verbal conflict with other Tory and Socialist Members who oppose or agree to Britain's entry into the Common Market.

WITH such confusion at the head of affairs, it cannot be expected that the Commonwealth countries who are encouraged to look on and patiently wait, should feel calm and assured that all will be well. Neither have the facts of the case been presented clearly to the people of the Commonwealth, nor to the British people at home, come to that.

The facts of the case are as follows. Britain is not exporting sufficient goods to balance her budget. The Government, committed to a welfare state and a high living standard are finding it difficult to maintain such standards with a dwindling export market in Europe. The reasons for the falling market are that Britons are not working hard enough, and secondly too much time is lost on too many strikes.

THE British people should be told straight out that the world is not waiting with an open order book while the British workman is led out on strikes by irresponsible shop stewards, men utterly ignorant of the fundamentals of economy and whose only qualities for leadership are vindictive agitation.

Then Britain has a duty to the people of the Commonwealth, but too many British politicians seem totally unaware that such is the case.

Can it be expected that Denmark shall walk in and take over the dairy market which is Australia's and New Zealand's by right? Is Hongkong to be left standing idle because Italy or France can't take over her market?

AND now this comes straight from the shoulder. There are too many home-based politicians who are too rural minded: who need reminding that the world is a larger place than Parliament Square and their own constituency. Never was there so great an ideal in concrete form than the group of nations known as the Commonwealth, and at the moment they are unwilling to be fed on rhetoric.

Entry into the Common Market alone cannot solve Britain's economic problems. Hard work, fewer strikes, a facing of facts, and keeping good faith with the Commonwealth can.

Gromyko backs plan for four-man UN Secretariat USSR OFFERS COMPROMISE

Soviets won't press for veto powers

New York, Sept. 27.

Mr. Andrei Gromyko, Soviet Foreign Minister, today outlined Soviet ideas on a four-man interim group to fill the executive gap in the United Nations Secretariat and indicated that the Soviet Union would not insist on a veto.

FALL-OUT OVER COLONY?

Although there is at present no agency in Hongkong which makes routine measurements of radio-active fall-out, the Royal Observatory expects to start taking measurements in the near future.

Measurements are made from rain water and by filtering the air to collect dust particles.

MOB OF NEGROES ATTACK POLICE

Newark, Sept. 27. High-pressure fire hoses were used today to break up a riot by hundreds of young negroes outside a police station here.

Police said as many as 600 youths had taken part in the demonstration, which followed an incident outside a school in which a patrolman was disarmed by a mob. He was one of three policemen attacked by students there.

Police said a 17-year-old boy attacked the policeman outside the school and took away his service pistol, then threatened him with it.

A second policeman grabbed the boy, who was taken to the police station.

The riot outside the police station followed. During the mob action, rocks hurled by the youths injured two firemen.—Reuter.

TARA SINGH IN 44TH DAY OF FAST

New Delhi, Sept. 27. The condition of the 76-year-old Sikh leader, Master Tara Singh, who is "fasting unto death" in the "zone of extreme seriousness," according to today's medical bulletin from Amritsar.

He is in the 44th day of his fast in support of demands for a Punjabi-speaking state. There has so far been no official reaction to yesterday's offer by Tara Singh's militant Akali Dal Party to try to persuade him to end his fast. If President Rajendra Prasad of India and opposition Swamintra Party leader Mr. C. Rajagopalachari, study his demands.—Reuter.

Last night the Soviet Union was reported to have backed at an informal Four-Power conference at the United Nations an Afro-Asian idea that the UN should have one chief official and three deputies.

Questioned by reporters today after a four-hour meeting with Mr. Dean Rusk, United States Secretary of State, on Berlin and other issues, Mr. Gromyko said that at present the Soviet Union wanted to "reach an understanding on a temporary arrangement" on the replacement of the Secretary-General.

A team

He said the Soviet Union felt that four people should be chosen to run the United Nations, with one of them considered to be chairman.

"They should work as a team and they must do this utmost to solve questions, within the scope and functions of the Secretariat on the basis of understanding among them," he said. The Security Council, and then the General Assembly, should agree on the choice of the four men, Mr. Gromyko said. Asked whether each should have veto power, he said: "I say again they must do their utmost to solve matters."

Observers said this appeared to mean that the Soviet Union would not press for precise veto powers.

Interim

Asked whether this represented a compromise on the original Soviet "troika" proposal, Mr. Gromyko said: "You may consider it a compromise, but remember, we are talking only of an interim arrangement. Whether it will be permanent remains to be seen."

Mr. Gromyko did not say whether he had discussed the issue with Mr. Rusk. He stressed that the Soviet plan would not work for the benefit of Russia or America, but for the United Nations as a whole.

Mr. Gromyko's statement came as opposition was reported to be mounting among non-aligned nations in the UN to the original Soviet three-man Secretariat proposal.

The Deputy Premier of Ceylon, Dr. Felix Dias Bandaranaike, this morning described the Soviet proposal as "a great danger to the United Nations" and called for further efforts to find a new Secretary-General who would enjoy the confidence of all nations.—Reuter.

Wife of HK soldier in witness-box

Hastings, Sept. 27.

Twenty-one-year-old Police Constable Peter Boon, of the Hastings Police Force, denied in court here today to indecently assaulting Mrs Janet Mary Spence, aged 24, whose husband is serving in Hongkong.

Boon pleaded not guilty at Hastings quarter sessions to indecent assault and attempting to have intercourse with Mrs. Spence against her will.

There are alternative charges of attempted rape and indecent assault.

Mr David Beck, prosecuting, said Boon was introduced to Mrs Spence in June.

On August 5, Mrs Spence, who had gone to bed, heard a noise and went downstairs. Through the glass door she saw the outline of a policeman. She asked who it was and unlocked the door. It was Boon.

Mr Beck alleged that incidents occurred. She was wearing "baby doll" pyjamas at the time. Later she saw Boon in her bedroom doorway. He attempted to have intercourse with her.

Her three-year-old daughter, Susan, woke up and said "What is the matter, Mummy? What is the policeman doing in the bedroom?"

Mrs Spence, who said she hoped to join her husband soon in Hongkong, told the court Boon came to her bedroom door one morning asking for a cup of tea, which she made for him.

'Baby doll'

A pair of "baby doll" pyjamas were shown to the jury of 11 men and one woman.

Giving evidence about an alleged incident on August 6 when she said Boon was in the house, Mrs Spence was given a glass of water in the witness box.

Describing a second incident she said: "Something woke me up and I sat up. A torch was shining in my eyes."

automatically knew it was Peter Boon."

Mrs Spence, cross-examined by Mr Anthony McCowan for the defence, said she worked as a part-time secretary for Mr George Jinks whom she had known for some years. She had been out socially with him, usually with someone else.

Mr McCowan asked: "Is he a little possessive as far as you are concerned?"

Mrs Spence replied: "No, he told my husband he would keep an eye on me. He has been a very fine friend to me and my children."

Referring to the night Mrs Spence said she heard a noise Mr McCowan suggested she saw the policeman by the garage, called out to him and suggested that he come in.

U.S. may send several hundred jets overseas

Washington, Sept. 27.

The United States may send several hundred additional jet fighters to Europe by the end of the year unless the Berlin crisis subsides, Pentagon sources indicated today.

The possibility emerged from guarded responses to reports that all or most of the 18 fighter-equipped Air National Guard squadrons reporting for active duty on Monday will be sent overseas.

These squadrons have a total of 411 jet fighters, most of them capable of carrying either conventional or nuclear weapons. Another four squadrons reporting for duty have reconnaissance versions of the planes.

Officials said no decision had been made as to which units would be sent overseas. It also was pointed out that the National Guard squadrons will require 30 to 90 days' training before they will be ready for duty.

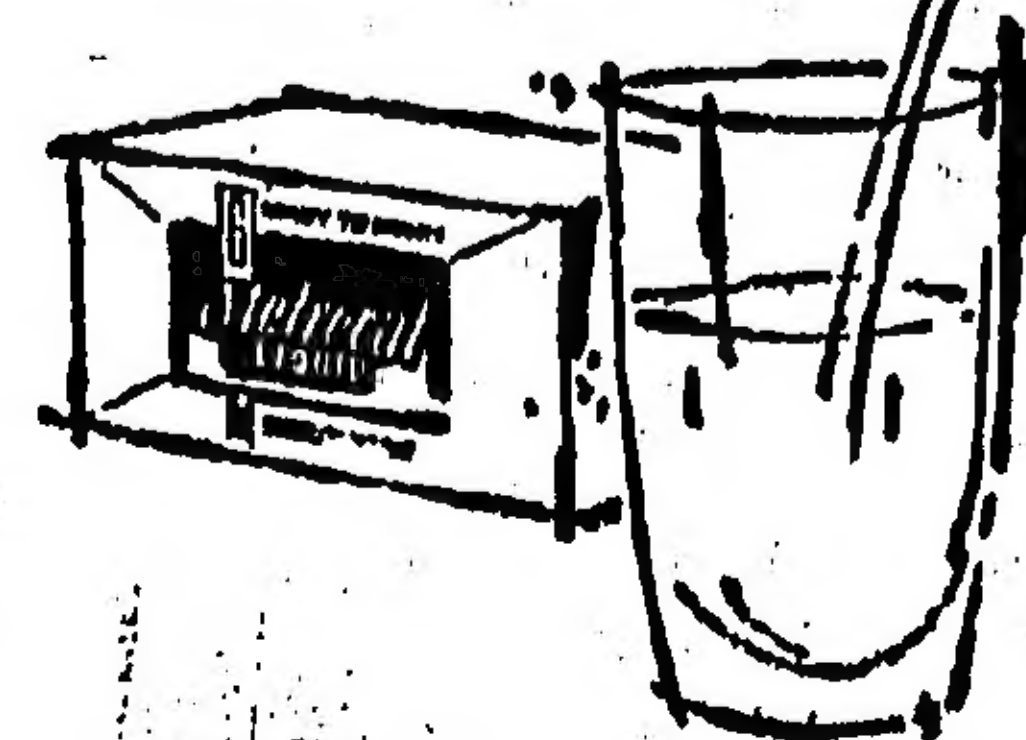

After that they could be sent to Europe or take up stations in the United States to release regular air force planes for duty in Europe.—UPI.

Wall Street's sharp advance

New York, Sept. 27. The Stock Market closed sharply higher in moderately active trading today. The market was a little higher at the opening. It moved ahead substantially in the first hour and continued to improve until noon. Some of the gains were erased in early afternoon trading, but the rally resumed in the final hour.

By the close the market had registered its best advance in nearly two months and most stocks were around their highs for the day at the final minute.

Most gains ranged from a few cents to around $4 a share, but there were odder advances for some of the higher priced and the more volatile issues.

Standard and Poor's 500 Stock Index rose 69 cents to 508.47, its best rise since July 27 when it advanced 77 cents. The S & P 425 Industrials added 78 cents to 470. Based on the index, the quoted value of all stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange gained about $4,300 million.

Volume rises

Of 1,243 issues traded, 693 advanced, 330 declined and 220 closed unchanged. New lows for the year again outnumbered new highs, this time by 33 to 16.

The Dow Jones 30 Industrials were up 7.13 to 701.13.

The Associated Press 60 Stock Average rose 2.10 to 350.80. Cars, steel and chemicals led the broad advance. They were joined by the rails, utilities, electronics and aircrafts.

Volume rose to 3,440,000 shares from 3,320,000 shares traded yesterday.

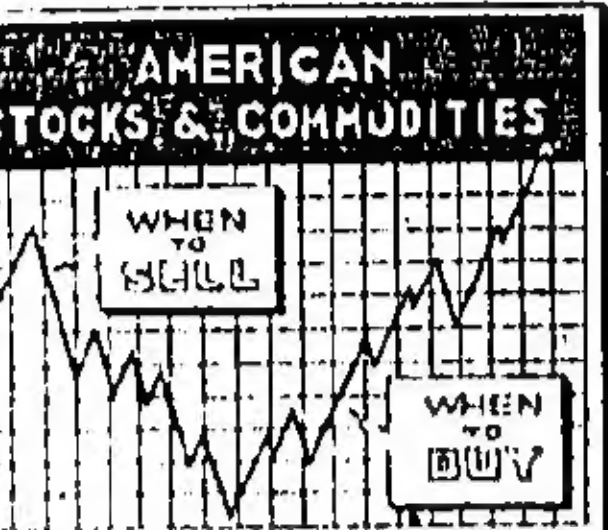

Of the ten most active stocks, four advanced, four declined and two were unchanged.

Montgomery Ward led the volume list, losing 1/4 at 31 1/2 on 190,000 shares. General Motors was second, up 1 1/4 to 49 3/4 on 75,700 shares. Interstate Department Stores was third, off 1/4 at 34 1/2 on 73,000 shares.

Montgomery Ward and Interstate are holding merger talks. Both stocks rose on the initial news, but fell when Wall Street learned the terms of the proposed merger, which were not encouraging to the market.

New York cotton market

New York, Sept. 27. Cotton futures today, seasonally narrow in quiet dealings as traders continued to even-up accounts in the nearby deliveries.

At the close the 1st ruled seven lower to 15 points higher. The market opened up three to off five points. New Orleans closed off six to up to 16 points.

Issuance of four October delivery notices brought home liquidation into the spot position. The succeeding December delivery felt the impact of commission house liquidation, dropping below the 35 cent level for the first time since last August 1.

Switching operations involves in nearby October to December and March by spot interests and commission houses.

Many traders were more interested in the sharp rebound of the stock market or winter determination of acreage allotments for the cotton crop. Under the law, the Secretary of Agriculture must make such an announcement by October 16.

The four October notices today brought total tenders to date to 9,700 bales.—UPI.

'We'll have to get used to smaller profit margins': Sir Graham

By Alexander Thomson

London, Sept. 27. Sir Graham Hayman, the first Londoner to head the £180 million Distillers Company of Edinburgh talked to me about present trading and future prospects.

"For the first half of this year," he said, puffing a well-smoked pipe, "our sales of Scotch whisky have been encouraging."

"But in plastics the profit margins in some directions have become decidedly unsatisfactory due to foreign price-cutting."

"We are having to sell more in order to maintain our position, which to a large degree we are succeeding in doing."

Sir Graham, who lives on Putney Heath, works in a severe high-ceilinged room in a St James' Square mansion.

Once it was the town house of the Earl of Strathmore, to whose family the Queen Mother belongs.

Scotch

Now with the house next door it makes up the London headquarters of the Distillers group Haig, Johnnie Walker and all that as well as Gordons and Booths gin.

The other day I read that Scotch was becoming a fashionable drink in wine-loving France. "How are you doing there?" I asked 68-year-old Sir Graham to start the ball rolling.

He explained: "There was heavy buying before the Chancellor announced the new credit squeeze. Sales have since fallen off. So we are not yet in a position to judge the impact."

"In the USA Scotch always does well but the demand in Canada is a little less strong."

"How about the home market following day increases in the 'little budget'?" The thought of whisky at 41/6d a bottle with 27/1d of duty it horrifies Sir Graham. The picture was "confused" he said.

He explained: "There was heavy buying before the Chancellor announced the new credit squeeze. Sales have since fallen off. So we are not yet in a position to judge the impact."

With a happy smile he told me: "Sales have risen most noticeably. There has been a marked increase in the past two years."

Roving further afield Sir Graham went on: "Australia is a good market at the moment and the Argentine has opened up again."

"In the USA Scotch always does well but the demand in Canada is a little less strong."

"How about the home market following day increases in the 'little budget'?" The thought of whisky at 41/6d a bottle with 27/1d of duty it horrifies Sir Graham. The picture was "confused" he said.

Small losses in an apathetic London market

London, Sept. 27. Small losses dominated an apathetic market today.

Trading declined in one of the year's slackest sessions while the index hit the 1001 bottom. Stocks were the brightest sector but gains stayed under the one-shilling mark.

Unilever took the spotlight and forged ahead, reflecting U.S. buying through Amsterdam. It was believed, The British counter added 5/16 to 130/3 while their Dutch "win" jumped 3/9 to better than 190 shillings.

Elsewhere among the leaders most movements were only in pennies. Imperial Chemical, Dunlop and British Motor Corporation, managed to move tiny fractions higher.

Tin mines came back in sympathy with the lower price for the metal, golds eased in places while copper stayed dull. Most dollar stocks declined but U.S. Steel gained 1 1/2. Ford lost 3 1/2 points.

Short-dated gilt edged firm but others stayed neglected. Japanese Government bonds and Germans added fractions in the foreign sector.

Tens moved higher but rubbers stayed quiet.—UPI.

Kennedy proposals rejected

SOVIETS ISSUE 2,500-WORD MEMORANDUM

United Nations, Sept. 27.

The Soviet Union in effect rejected today President Kennedy's proposal of a nuclear test ban and reiterated its assertions that the "sole correct and practical" solution was to include the issue under a general and complete disarmament pact.

The Soviet Government submitted a 2,500-word memorandum on the subject to the UN Security Council, an Anglo-American initiative to get the General Assembly to debate the failure of the Geneva talks on a nuclear test ban treaty.

Attempt

The Soviet document said this was an attempt to "use the Security Council to justify the policy of the British and American governments on the question of nuclear weapons, which are dangerous for the nations, and to obtain opportunities to continue without restraint their preparations for a thermonuclear war, which is fraught with horrible consequences for the whole of mankind."

The Soviet memorandum did not allude to President Kennedy's statement in the Assembly on Monday that a test ban treaty should be signed by all nations without waiting for general disarmament.

But, in effect, it answered this proposal by re-emphasising the Soviet contention that to isolate the tests issue from general and complete disarmament places "no obligation upon states—except moral ones."

The Soviet Government claimed that France had "grossly flouted this moral obligation" by conducting nuclear tests during the Anglo-Soviet-American voluntary moratorium, with the connivance of the United States and the United Kingdom.

Tonight's memorandum said that France had conducted tests in the interests of the Nato group, while their allies had negotiated at Geneva.

Britain and the United States had "actually encouraged the French tests," the Soviet Government said, to strengthen the military potential of Nato.

West Germany and other Nato members also "went on continuously intensifying the arms race, particularly the race of nuclear, chemical and bacteriological weapons," the Soviet statement said.

"Practical preparations were launched in Nato to equip the West German Bundeswehr with rocket and nuclear weapons," and military preparations were stepped up.

No option

The Soviet statement justified the resumption of nuclear tests in Russia by saying that "in conditions of such an acute aggravation of international tensions, the Soviet Government was confronted with the need to take precautions to strengthen the defensive capability of the USSR."

The Soviet Union had had no option "or else surrender the vitally important security interests of the Soviet Union and all the socialist states."

The memorandum, which Mr. Andrei Gromyko, Soviet Foreign Minister, promised in his Assembly address yesterday, was the first prepared separate statement of the Soviet position on nuclear testing since Mr. Kennedy made his disarmament proposals.

(Mr. Gromyko's statement yesterday bore the marks of having been prepared before Mr. Kennedy spoke, observers said.)—Reuter.

Allen Dulles retiring as head of the CIA

Newport, Sept. 27.

Mr. Allen Dulles, 68, will retire as head of the Central Intelligence Agency in November, as agreed last year, President Kennedy announced here today.

The new head of the CIA will be Mr. John McCone, chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission under the Eisenhower Administration.

Rumours that Mr. Dulles, brother of former Secretary of State, Mr. John Foster Dulles, would leave the CIA, have been widespread since the failure of the Cuban landings in April. These and last year's U-2 spy-flight incident brought the Agency under heavy criticism.

RUMOURS

But these rumours have been consistently met with White House denials that Mr. Dulles would be replaced before November—the date he agreed on last November.

The President made the announcement at the U.S. College of Newport's naval base, Mr. McCone and Mr. Dulles appeared with him.

The President told the 68-year-old Mr. Dulles that he had a record almost unique, if not unique, in the history of the United States.

"I know of no man who is a more courageous public servant than Mr. Allen Dulles," the President said.

The President, who came to Newport yesterday for a week's holiday at the nearby home of his wife's parents, sailed over to the naval base in the Presidential yacht, the Honey Fitz.

IMMEDIATELY

He went immediately to the auditorium, which was filled with hundreds of officers—students at the war college, as well as many high U.S. naval officers.

The President, in making his announcement, recalled that when he had reappointed Mr. Dulles to the post last November following his own election, they had reached an understanding that Mr. Dulles would serve only for another year.

But if there were any lingering differences between the President and Mr. Dulles over that affair, they were not evident today in the warm atmosphere which surrounded the President's personal appearance and his announcement.

TRANSITION

The President said he and Mr. Dulles had been concerned this summer that the Agency should continue to serve as an effective instrument of our country's policy, and we have been most anxious that we would secure the services of an experienced public servant and that the transition which would be made in the autumn should be as smooth and effective as possible.

"We are both extremely pleased and satisfied that Mr. John McCone, who has served the country in important positions of responsibility as Under-Secretary of the Air Force in the Administration of President Truman and as Chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission in the Administration of President Eisenhower, has agreed to come and accept a position of high responsibility."—Reuter.

But she didn't get back the necklace!

Gettysburg, Sept. 27.

Whoever stole that handbag from former President Eisenhower's daughter-in-law had a second thought or two.

In yesterday's mail Mrs. John Eisenhower received her credit cards, driver's licence and an ancient Greek coin, a memento of her trip to Europe with her father-in-law when he was President.

But she did not get back a pearl necklace with an emerald clasp.

A thief took the handbag from Mrs. Eisenhower in a New York store last Saturday.—AP.

'No longer fully convinced'

Vienna, Sept. 27.

An Austrian Lenin Peace Prize winner said yesterday that he was having "second thoughts" about his earlier statement that the United States used germ warfare in Korea.

Heinrich Brandewiner, 51, professor of International Affairs at the Graz University, was a member of the "Austrian Peace Committee" which investigated charges that America was bombing Korea with germs.

The Committee published its conviction that the Americans were guilty of the charge and played a prominent role in the Communist propaganda attempt to brand the Americans as war criminals.

INTERPRETERS

But in an interview today with the Vienna "Woche Presse," Brandewiner said he "was no longer fully convinced of the evidence."

Brandewiner pointed out that during his investigation, he depended completely on interpreters when questioning Korea witnesses.

Brandewiner also complained that the "Peace Council" did not protest again the resumption of Soviet atomic tests last month.

"It cannot be understood that the Peace Council which fought nuclear armament for many years found not a single word of protest against the Soviet resumption of nuclear tests," he said.

Brandewiner was awarded the Lenin Peace Prize in 1957.—UPI.

YOUNG MINER WINS A FORTUNE

Leeds, Sept. 27.

A 23-year-old Yorkshire miner, with eight years in the pits behind him, learned today he had won more than £150,000 on the football pools.

Keith Howard Nicholson, of Castleford, heard that his entry on Littlewood's Pools had brought him £152,318.

Mr. Nicholson is married with three children—Susan, 3; William, 18 months; and Howard, eight months.

He said of his overnight fortune "this will make the future secure for the kids. That's the first consideration."

His total stake for the win was three shillings and five pence.

"I have not got a special system," he said. "I look carefully at the matches and select those I think will end in a draw."

Now both he and his wife, Vivian, 25, look forward to fulfilling "working dreams"—Keith doing oil painting and his wife running a hair and beauty salon.

A 54-year-old Hornchurch (Essex) electrician Mr. Henry Broadbent, won £73,000 on another football pool.

He said today he knew nothing about football and had been filling in the same numbers for years, previously without success.—China Mail Special.

Bishop of London's election confirmed

London, Sept. 27.

The election of Dr R. W. Stopford, Bishop of Peterborough, as Bishop of London was confirmed in the Court of Arches at St Mary Le Bow.

Dr Stopford's election was approved last month by Canon L. J. Collins, President of St Paul's Cathedral who described the process by which he was nominated by the Crown as "archaic nonsense, a farce and a charade".

He made no protest in the Court of Arches.

Dr Stopford, as a former school-master, has been frequently called on by the Church of England for his advice on educational matters in Africa and Asia.

He was principal of Trinity College, Kandy, Ceylon from 1935 to 1940 and principal of Achimota College Gold Coast (now Ghana) from 1940 to 1945.—China Mail Special.

The reports said Dr Acacio Gouveia, a Lisbon lawyer, and Eduardo Figueredo of Santarem, had been freed.

But an Oporto lawyer, Dr Cal Brandao, who also signed the proclamation, has been detained, the sources reported.

Twelve of the 61 signers of the manifesto were arrested but most have been released. Among those still reported held is Mario Soares of Lisbon, member of a left-wing faction.—AP.

Cunard officials declined to say why the machines had been removed and would only say that the installation of the devices had merely been "an experiment".

(It was reported in London that the machines had been kept locked on the most recent crossing and that they are to be withdrawn).—China Mail Special.

Muna al Hussein, wife of King Hussein of Jordan, is expecting a baby during next March, a Palace announcement said tonight.

Mr McWatters said that instead of being regarded purely as an after-dinner drink, port is now being drunk increasingly in Britain as an aperitif. It is catching on in the 10 to 35 age group and women seemed to be acquiring a taste for it.

New born triplets fighting for their lives

Melbourne, Sept. 27.

The two-pound triplets born on Monday night to Mrs Eleanor Foister, formerly of Northumberland, who had a hole in her heart until operated on two years ago, were fighting for their lives today.

And the breadwinner of the family, David Jeffries was hard at work at a self-service store two miles away. David's stepfather, Mr Foister, has been unemployed until the last day or so.

David supplemented the unemployment benefits the Foisters got from the Government this winter with the £14 weekly he earned in the store.

There are three other children in the family.

David said today: "Yes, things have been pretty tough, but we're happy. We have no refrigerator, no washing machine, no television—but at least we have one another."

Mrs Foister underwent her heart operation in Shetley Bridge Hospital, Northumberland. The triplets were born in Box Hill and District Hospital. They have been named Andrew Duncan, Timothy and Neil.—China Mail Special.

Portugal releases two men

Lisbon, Sept. 27.

Two of the signers of a "programme for democratising Portugal", detained since last May, have been released, opposition sources said today.

The reports said Dr Acacio Gouveia, a Lisbon lawyer, and Eduardo Figueredo of Santarem, had been freed.

But an Oporto lawyer, Dr Cal Brandao, who also signed the proclamation, has been detained, the sources reported.

Twelve of the 61 signers of the manifesto were arrested but most have been released. Among those still reported held is Mario Soares of Lisbon, member of a left-wing faction.—AP.

Cunard officials declined to say why the machines had been removed and would only say that the installation of the devices had merely been "an experiment".

Pilot blamed for crash, court told

Singapore, Sept. 27.

The Royal Air Force had found the pilot of a Hastings transport plane, which crashed in Singapore on May 29 killing all 13 on board, was to blame for the accident, a witness told a coroner's court here today.

The pilot was named in court as 30-year-old Flight Lieutenant Anthony Lyne. His home address was not released.

The coroner returned an open finding at the end of the inquest into the death of the five members of the transport's crew and eight soldiers of No. 56 Company (Air Despatch), Royal Army Service Corps, who had been on board.

Squadron Leader Harold Charles Egging, representing the RAF Board of Inquiry into the crash, told the court:

"The Board has found the captain of the aircraft responsible for the accident in that he failed to take proper action following the failure of the port inner engine and subsequently lost control of his aircraft."

He said the cause of the engine's failure had still not been determined and it had been down to Britain for expert examination.

The coroner said he gave his open verdict in the absence of a full technical report on the cause of the engine failure.

He said the Hastings had been on a practice supply drop over Selat air base when it nose-dived into the ground three miles south of the airfield.

Squadron Leader Egging said the plane had been serviceable before take-off. It had been properly loaded and the crew was competent to carry out the flight with a proper brief.—China Mail Special.

The Beauty of the Beasts

FASHION OPENS THE CAGE
TO NEW FABRICS, NEW COLOURS

by
Jill Butterfield

The bear look — in a shaggy-haired sweater of Acrilan and cotton. Long and loose, it comes in six colours. By Lloyd Menswear. Bri-nylon tights by Morley.

INSIDE the gentlest of girls is a beautiful beast trying to get out. And suddenly fashion opens the cage. For jungle furs—the ocelot and the leopard—stalked through the international collections.

And mink, sable, lynx, and beaver were on the prowl.

Nice for the trapper.

Nice for the furrier.

Nice for the millionaire.

But even though the most fabulous fashions always start at the top, the glamour, the appeal, the cosseting comfort of fur is no longer reserved for the girl in the gilded cage.

Modern science has brought synthetic skins into every wardrobe. And present-day copies are realistic enough to be blood-brothers to the real thing.

Consider the newest imitation fur fabrics. They have come a long way from the crude, coloured, harsh-feeling, early prototypes, which lost their spots and their good looks in the rain.

Although a full-length sable coat has an undeniable built-in snob value, its imitation counterpart will wash and drip-dry overnight.

Search for a new category of curl-up clothes. The coolest way of lounging around or basking by the first coal-fire of winter, is in a cat suit which fits like a second skin.

Try one bold fur at a time. With ocelot, wear more ocelot or plain black to accessories. With a furry sweater, wear smooth lights or trousers—it's only too easy to look like the Yeti if you get over-enthusiastic about the beast business.

Hunt for fur colours. Back-to-nature browns are a new alternative to black. Pale chinchilla grey and the golden tones of a marmalade cat are flattering new fashion colours.

The leopard look — in a budget priced raincoat, cut as simply as a trenchcoat. It also has a matching rainhat. By Pakamac.

Making
the glove
fit . . . ★

Mustard millionaires boast that their fortune comes from what you have behind on the plate.

Same goes for umbrella makers, handkerchief tycoons, and glove manufacturers. Now at last there's a man who has come to terms with women's untidiness.

A leading firm of glove makers is selling gloves which not only fit either hand and any size, but can be bought separately.

the cap

After suffering umpteenth years of our climate you would expect every English girl to be born with a built-in knowledge of how to cope with the rain. But it's taken until now for really attractive waterproof hats to be produced.

The rain hat — shown lately at the Millinery Institute of Great Britain — is made in showerproof foam-backed jersey.

The rain hood in a lacy-like Bri-nylon is lined in light waterproof.

Circus Is In Town

—Knarf Tells Teddy About Clowns, Magicians—

By MAX TRELL

"WELL," said Knarf, the Shadow Boy, as he sat down next to his friend Teddy, the Stuffed Bear. "It's back again! Isn't that wonderful, Teddy?"

"Of course it is!" cried Teddy. He shouted several times, "Hurrah! Hurrah!" Then he quietened down.

"What is?" he then asked. Knarf shot Teddy a look.

Stupid bear

"You're a stupid old fat Bear!" he said.

"Yes," said Teddy.

"Didn't you know that the circus is back in town?" asked Knarf.

Teddy broke into a smile.

"Oh, the circus! So it's back in town? Well, well, well, hooray!" he shouted again. "Hooray! Hooray!"

Teddy shouted so loud that everyone in the playground looked across at him to see what was the matter.

"The circus is in town!" Teddy shouted several more times.

Didn't know meaning

Now the truth is that Teddy didn't know what a circus was. He didn't like to tell Knarf that he didn't know. He sat waiting for Knarf to tell him more about the circus so he could be able to find out what it was without asking about it.

"It's downtown," said Knarf. "It's in a great big building."

"A building?" repeated Teddy. "Is that where it lives?"

"You are a stupid old Bear," said Knarf. "Circuses don't live in a building. They just stay there when they are in town. Sometimes they stay in tents. You know," he added, "I don't think you've ever been to a circus."

Teddy hung his head.

"I don't think so, either," he finally admitted.

Patted on head

Knarf was silent for a moment or two, then he patted his friend Teddy on the head.

"All right, you old Bear," he said. "You just listen carefully and I'll tell you what a circus is."

Teddy's face lit up. "Hooray!" he started to yell. Then he stopped and said,

"Please tell me, Knarf, what a circus is."

"A circus," began Knarf, "is a great big show. First you buy a ticket and then they let you go and see it. It's in a great big building because lots of people can see it at the same time. There are seats all around for people to sit in. In the center is a big space with big round rings where all the Elephants and Horses and Monkeys do tricks."

"What kind of tricks?" asked Teddy.

"Circus tricks," said Knarf. "The Elephants walk, holding each other's tails. The Horses prance around with Riders doing somersaults on their backs."

"The Monkeys play tag with the Clowns."

"Clowns?" repeated Teddy.

Funny faces

"Don't you know what Clowns are?" asked Knarf. "They're Men with funny faces. When you look at them, you laugh."

"Oh," said Teddy. "Like me. Lots of times when people see me they do that."

"You're not a Clown at all," said Knarf. "You're just a little old Bear. And not a very smart one, either."

"Thank you," said Teddy. "And what else is in the circus?"

What acrobats do

"Acrobats," said Knarf. "They stand on their heads. They tumble. They do cart wheels. They walk on their hands."

"I can walk on my hands," said Teddy.

"Of course you can't," said Knarf. "You haven't even got hands. You've got four feet!"

"Oh no," said Teddy. "I have four hands."

Knarf didn't argue with Teddy. He went on: "But the best things in the whole circus are the Magicians. They say magic words and — poof! — they can take Rabbits out of hats."

Teddy's wish

"Wish I could go to the circus," said Teddy.

Knarf shook his head. "Bears like you can't go to the circus," he said.

Teddy sighed.

"I wish a Magician would come along and change me into a Boy," he said. "Then I could go to the circus like you, couldn't I?"

"I can walk on my hands," Teddy said to Knarf.

And Teddy sighed again, because he was quite sure that no Magician would come along and change him into a Boy.

6♥	Pass	7♥	Pass

You, South, hold:

♠ A K Q 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 ♠ A

What do you do?

A—Bid seven hearts. Your partner holds two kings. If one is in diamonds your seven is home. If not, he may hold a singleton diamond only and at worst you will need a diamond finesse.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You open the bidding with one spade, holding:

♠ A Q J 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 ♠ A

After two passes, East bids two hearts. What do you, South, do now?

Answer Tomorrow

The next two weeks' articles will cover some of George's hands.

George gives three "D's" for trump play. They stand for "Draw, Delay, and Don't."

He says that 40 per cent of hands call for immediate trump play by declarer, 50 per cent for delay. And with 10 per cent a good declarer just doesn't play trumps at all.

West opens the queen of clubs against South's four-spade contract and South counts four potential losers—one in diamonds and three in hearts.

He can get rid of one heart loser by ruffing in dummy and therefore the hand falls into the "Don't" category.

Declarer should win the club and lead a heart. Furthermore, he should lead hearts each other time he gets in until he is able to ruff that third heart.

Incidentally, a trump opening would have beaten four spades, but who can blame West for leading that attractive club suit?

DELEGATES TOLD THAT ELECTION OF NEW PRESIDENT IS ILLEGAL

London, Sept. 27.

Delegates to the Congress of the International Soccer Federation (FIFA), here to elect a new president, hear with amazement today that the election has been ruled illegal. The FIFA Executive Committee has ruled that an Extraordinary Congress of 150 countries due to open tomorrow for the specific purpose of overhauling the statutes—has no power to elect a president. The election must take place at the next Ordinary Congress in Chile next year, the Executive Committee said.

The news was announced to European delegates at an up-coming Congress of the FIFA Executive Committee's eleventh hour change of mind. The confusion, it was explained, was caused by a misinterpretation of the French text of the FIFA statutes.

Confusion

For months, soccer associations around the world have been lobbying for the four candidates for the presidency—Ernst Thommen of Switzerland, Sir Stanley Rous of England, Dr. Ottorino Barassi of Italy and Professor Mihajlo Andrejevic of Yugoslavia. There were shouts of "Clowns," "Mountebanks" and

"Why are we here?" when UEFA president Ebbe Schwartz of Denmark announced the FIFA Executive Committee's eleventh hour change of mind. The confusion, it was explained, was caused by a misinterpretation of the French text of the FIFA statutes. The Executive Committee decided to recommend cancelling the election after studying the English text, which is considered authoritative. The former president, Arthur Driessens of England, died early this year. Thommen, the senior vice-president, has been acting president. The Executive Committee will recommend today that he continues in this role until next year's Congress.

The information from a London taxi-driver. Dr. Peco J. Bauwens of West Germany declared: "I am very surprised by the attitude of the Italians. They had accepted the fact that the election would take place at this Congress." Bauwens added, as delegates shouted and banged their desks: "Is this a comedy or a tragedy that we are enacting here? We represent a sport, and we should act as sportsmen, not as clowns."

Bauwens said that when FIFA and UEFA agreed several months ago to hold the election at this Congress, Thommen was the only candidate. "The position has been complicated by the other three candidates being put forward since," Bauwens said. He said FIFA will not be taken seriously in the eyes of the world if its Executive Committee puts an election on the agenda and then takes it off at the last minute. The right to elect a president will go ahead and elect a new president—if it votes a 75 per cent majority to overrule its Executive Committee.—AP.

The first many European delegates knew of the Executive Committee's new decision was when Dr. Giuseppe Pasquale of Italy stood up and proposed a motion supporting it. "What decision?" Pasquale explained he had learned of the decision in a confidential talk with Barassi, who is a member of the Executive Committee. Incredulous delegates still queried whether Pasquale's information was correct. The Italian angrily snapped back: "I certainly did not get

Chelsea causes soccer sensation

London, Sept. 28.

Chelsea Football Club created a sensation in football circles here tonight when they announced that the contract between the club and manager Ted Drake had been cancelled by "mutual agreement."

Drake, a former England and Arsenal centre-forward, and one of the legendary names in British soccer, had six years of his contract still to run. His contract had been made for 10 years, and had been longest ever made in British football history.

DUAL ROLE

The former star—who came to Chelsea from Reading—started with the Stamford Bridge team in 1952. He led Chelsea to an unexpected League Championship title in 1954-55, but since then the club's fortunes have waned.

The club does not intend to replace Drake immediately and player coach, Tommy Docherty, the former Arsenal and Scotland crowd-puller, will fill a dual role of "personnel officer" and trainer.

Chelsea were in the news at the end of last season when they sold the star player, inside-right Jimmy Greaves, to Milan A.C. for £100,000.—AP.

TO PROTEST AGAINST SUSPENSION

London, Sept. 27.
Fred Fell, president of the South African Football Association, said tonight he will ask for a personal hearing to protest his association's suspension by the World Soccer Federation (FIFA).

British delegates, here for the Congress of FIFA indicated they would support him. The FIFA Executive Committee announced yesterday it had suspended the all-white South African Association because its racial policies are contrary to FIFA's constitution. "How can they do this without giving us a hearing?" Fell asked.

The Executive has said that South Africa's delegates may attend the Congress but will not be allowed to speak. Last year, FIFA gave South Africa 12 months to bring its policies into line with the Federation's constitution, or lose its membership.

Sir Stanley Rous, secretary of the English Football Association and one of the most influential figures in world soccer, told reporters: "My association is very distressed and will do all in its power to get the suspension lifted at the earliest possible moment."—AP.

Is Saturday soccer in England out-of-date?

Is Saturday afternoon soccer now another out-moded English tradition? Has the time come for a revolutionary switch to mid-week matches, Friday fixtures, or perhaps even Sunday soccer?

Suddenly, this has become a major talking-point in League football. Some people suggest mid-week matches entirely; some clubs have taken positive action and have already introduced a number of Friday fixtures. A national newspaper has been conducting an opinion poll on all the possibilities.

The argument for ending Saturday soccer seems to be based chiefly on the idea that we have a new, affluent society, and that Mr. Average Spectator has his house, car, television, as well as his family, to hold his interest at weekends. Social habits have changed, we are told, and League soccer must recognise these changes or face the prospect of ever-decreasing gates.

Wolves' experiment

There may be some truth in this argument, but before any change is made it is imperative that clubs prove to their own satisfaction that a change from Saturday afternoon football will be accepted by the majority of their supporters. This can only be achieved by experimenting with fixtures over a lengthy period or possibly by having a comprehensive Gallup Poll.

Wolves made an experiment with Manchester United not so long ago, when we held the match on Saturday evening instead of the afternoon. Attendance figures did not suggest to me that this was a preferable time, but then the evidence of one game is hardly enough for one to draw firm conclusions.

Those in favour of Sunday soccer point to its success on the Continent. But simply don't believe that the majority of supporters would welcome such a set-up in England.

Those wintry nights! Although people scoff at the "British way of life" argument, the fact remains that tradition dies hard in this country. And apart from the objections that would be raised by the various religious bodies, there would be public transport problems to be considered.

Friday or mid-week soccer? Yes, this might work happily for some clubs. Coventry City, especially, are convinced that Friday evening is preferable for some of their fixtures and they may well be right — in their case. Now other clubs are beginning to wonder if there might not be more money in Friday night football. I only wonder how enthusiastic they will be when the wintry conditions arrive and fans are faced with the choice of watching television by a warm, cosy fire or braving the elements to see League soccer.

Summer soccer?

While Coventry have made the switch with considerable success, there is no reason to believe it would suit all clubs. For example, how would it affect gates at those clubs which draw much of their support from outlying districts?

Consider also the fact that only 10,565 fans watched the Wednesday night local derby between Queen's Park Rangers and Crystal Palace this season, when the previous Saturday saw 27,179 fans turn out to watch the same teams meet in a League match.

I would not like to say whether this was indicative of disinterest in the League Cup or of preference for Saturday afternoon football. The fact is that we know very little about the tastes of the paying public, even though it is the customers who must eventually decide whether we abolish Saturday soccer.

PRESTON MAY BID FOR 'YOUNG ENGLAND' STAR JOHNNY BARNWELL

London.

Preston, desperate for a goal striker, may bid for Johnny Barnwell, the Young England insider who is out of Arsenal's team. This follows an unsuccessful attempt to draw Tom Finney out of retirement. The Football League squashed that idea.

By

JAMES CONNOLLY

Preston were told that when Finney drew his Provident Fund cheque last January, he signed away any chance of again playing in the League.

Southampton and Norwich are also interested in Barnwell, who, two weeks ago turned down a move to Middlesbrough, at a £25,000 fee.

Southampton could put up an attractive exchange deal with another Young England star, left-winger John Sydenham.

The big bonus system which shoots some top-line professionals into surtax brackets is condemned by Bob Lord, the bluff, down-to-earth chairman of Burnley.

Mr Lord is not against big wages. Burnley players probably get the best standard rate in football — but he feels that the bonus inducements dangled by some clubs can hit players' pockets.

"Wages based on the size of crowds may be high at this time of year," he says, "but what happens in the winter months?"

"Attendances fall then, no matter how well the team is playing, so the players will suffer through no fault of their own."

"We don't believe in this stunt at Burnley. We have given our players a good basic wage — as much as we can possibly afford. They seem happy and contented with our scheme, and the League results are proving it."

When Arsenal made a recent inquiry for Swindon left-half Bobby Woodruff, they were told to put in their bid for consideration.

There Swindon youngsters are in demand. Newcastle chase right-winger Mike Summerbee and Forest follow full-back John Trollope.

Swansea have an unfailing fascination for the talent suckers. Now it is Horrie Williams, the starlet insider-forward who has become a star left-half, who pulls them in.

Leicester City have around £50,000 to spend on new players, and I am told that they are ready to pay £25,000 plus for Williams.

Spurs are still checking on Bradford City outside-right Trevor Hockey. Leeds will ask £28,000 for centre-forward Johnny McCole. Brendan McWilly (Luton) is a Brighton full-back target. Colchester may go for wing-half Dave Cockell (Queen's Park Rangers).

Newport manager Bobby Evans snapped up a close-season snip when he got former Chelsea wing-half Andy Bowman on a free transfer from Hearts.

Everton have watched Bowman three times. They like him. But the bargain sales are over. He will cost £240,000.

Her 'guns' matched world's biggest battleship!

By DENNIS DREW

The diminutive honey-blonde was little more than a toddler when she first stepped on to the tennis court to help the local tennis 'pro' in her home town of San Diego, California. Her reward for her ball-girl service was a tennis lesson.

Little did the pro realise that by the time his young pupil was 14 she would have won more than 70 tennis trophies and be ranked 14th among the women tennis stars of the United States. Three years later she was U.S. No. 1 leader of the Wightman Cup team and Wimbledon champion.

At 18 she was undisputed women's champion of the tennis world. Maureen Connolly had arrived. Fame had indeed come to this young woman, sometimes called the "tennis robot," at an early age. Yet by her 20th birthday she had finished with big-time tennis.

MAUREEN CONNOLLY world champion at 18.

It was her other love of horseriding that brought her brilliant career to a premature end.

Little Mo — they called her that because they said her tennis "game" was matched only by those of the world's biggest battleship, the Mighty Mo — had recently married Olympic horseman Norman Brinker when she injured her leg in a riding accident. It was the end of Little Mo as a tennis star.

Peak years

Little Mo was still a schoolgirl when she was coached by the one and only "Teach" Tennant. Hour after hour of practice followed school-time and occupied her holidays. Twelve months after leaving school she was the youngest-ever U.S. tennis champion.

She was still a teenager when she was in the victorious Wightman Cup team and when she stepped on to the sacred turf at Wimbledon to win the women's singles final at 17.

Although Little Mo won three Wimbledon titles in 1952, '53 and '54, 1953 was perhaps the peak of her championship-winning run. In that year she was singles champion of Australia, United States, France and Wimbledon. She became the first woman ever to hold the four major titles in one year. Maureen Connolly was indeed a robot when it came to play.

Laver said: "But no contract was discussed, and until a firm offer is made and a guarantee put forward, I certainly will not be seriously considering turning professional. I most certainly will be trying for inclusion in the next Australian Davis Cup team."

Accord reached MADAGASCAR TO BUY FORMOSAN TUNA

After spending two days in Hongkong, the Madagascan Minister of Agriculture, Mr R. Rasidy, left Hongkong by Air India yesterday with his advisers, Mr Rakotondrazafy, Mr Rajoeliso and Mr Lagoin.

They will stop briefly at Bombay before returning to Tananarive.

The delegation had been in Formosa at the invitation of the Nationalist Chinese Government to study agricultural methods there and to discuss agricultural and fishing co-operation.

As a result, it has been arranged that tuna fish caught in Formosa will be canned in Madagascar, and representatives will be sent from there to learn this form of fishing in Formosa.

During the first year Madagascar will buy 3,000 tons of tuna from Formosa and expects after that to have sufficient experience to establish its own fishing industry.

No firm agreement was reached in the agricultural discussions, which, it was hoped would provide assistance from Formosa on mechanisation in paddy fields. Manual labour is largely employed in Madagascar.

Fighting qualities

On yesterday's front page you published a report giving the total Irish casualties during recent Katanga fighting. Out of 200 troops, 150 were captured, 21 wounded, two reported missing and one killed. There seems to be something amiss here. From previous reports we gathered that bitter fighting took place. What sort of gallant fighting causes 150 men to be captured after such insignificant casualties?

Can one imagine the inspired leadership, the "will-to-win" that produces such shaming statistics?

If the UN have to rely on troops who apparently lack real fighting qualities as this example appears to show, the UN should give up the struggle.

BELUM.

Man acquitted of blasting charge

A construction company worker, Tam Siu-sung, 36, was found not guilty in the Criminal Sessions this morning of a charge of setting off an explosion in a ballroom, and was acquitted by Mr Justice A. D. Scholtes.

The prosecution alleged that the accused had set off dynamite in a ballroom in Lockhart-road on June 8. The accused denied the charge, saying that he was with a dance hostess at the time. When she went away, he heard the blast and lost consciousness. He spent several days in the hospital.
